Probation Association of New Jersey Recognizes Probation Officers, Supervisors and Related Professionals during Pretrial, Probation and Parole Supervision Week July 15-21, 2018

The Probation Association of New Jersey (PANJ) recognizes and celebrates the work of its Probation Officers, Supervisors and related Professionals during the week of July 15, 2018.

PANJ represents nearly 3000 Probation Officers, Supervisors and related Professionals in New Jersey, who oversee the 10th largest Probation population in the United States.

As Professionals, you are a critical part of the public safety system. You provide integral services throughout the judicial process to citizens' of New Jersey. These functions include supervision of convicted offenders, ensuring that child support orders are followed, family and criminal pre/post-disposition investigation, Pre-trial Supervisors and sentencing services, to make New Jersey safer and provide an improved quality of life. As Officers, Supervisors and related Professionals work unabated to improve the lives and futures of victims and offenders.

The responsibilities that PANJ Professionals provide are crucial to the safety of our daily lives and the community as a whole. This work often goes without any type of recognition or acknowledgement.

I would like to thank you and acknowledge the commitment that you make to improve the lives of those that you interact with, day in and day out. In recognition of all that you do, not only during this week, but though out the year, THANK YOU for making a difference!

I am extremely honored and humbled to be the President of PANJ and work side by side with such a resourceful, dedicated and intelligent group of Professionals who give of themselves unselfish dedication.

We are PANJ!

Dwight Covaleskie
President, PANJ
