The Probation Association of New Jersey (PANJ) is very concerned for the employees and citizens who suffered from an unknown sickness that plagued the Monmouth County Courthouse, leading to its temporary closing yesterday, June 18th, at 1:00 pm.

“The safety of courthouse employees and individuals who have business to tend to in the building is of high importance to us and we are glad that immediate action has taken place,” said George Christie, President of the Probation Association of New Jersey.

He further stated, “Monmouth County Courthouse is working closely with the state Judiciary to close the building and thoroughly clean it. We hope that those who have fallen ill will recover quickly and no other incidents like this occur.”

About The Probation Association of New Jersey (PANJ)

PANJ represents an estimated 2,800 probation officers and supervisors statewide employed by the Judiciary through two collective bargaining units that include other professional personnel.

PANJ is also an affiliate member of the American Probation and Parole Association (APPA). PANJ representatives attend APPA training institutes nationwide.
